JOYFUL EAST SIDE.

Both Parts of Stuyvesant Park to be Lit and Opened Evenings.

Abutters Testify to the Public Benefit of Such a Course.

"The Evening World" Commended for Its Fight in the People's Cause.

Every one who lives in the vicinity of Stuyvesant Park is rejoicing this morning in the prospect of a speedy reopening of the entire park to the public in the evenings.

"Now that THE EVENING WORLD has taken up the cudgels for us again," they say, "we are sure that something is going to be done right away."

In fact, almost everybody feels that the victory is already practically won, for it is known from experience that whenever THE EVENING WORLD steps into the fight to champion the people's cause it is always successful.

The assurance given by Comptroller Myers that the Gas Commissioners would take action in the matter as soon as it should be brought before them is one of the most encouraging features of the situation.

The wonder is why they have put off consideration of the question so long at a time when it has been repeatedly brought to the general attention of the public by THE EVENING WORLD and the need of such a breathing-spot in that densely populated section of the town is so universally recognized.

Not only the poor dwellers of the east-side tenement houses in the vicinity of the park, but the wealthy occupants of the handsome residences that border upon it, are anxious to have the whole park thrown open to the public after sundown.

They are delighted at the slashing manner in which THE EVENING WORLD has joined in the fight and stirred up the sleepy Gas Commissioners to a sense of their duty and to a realization of their shortcomings.

"It's a shame," said Edward Kassel, who lives at 601 East Seventeenth street, to an EVENING WORLD reporter this morning, "to think how these city officials have been neglecting their duty, when they must all of them know what a grievance it is to the poor people of this neighborhood to be shut out from their only available pleasure ground."

"All my neighbors feel just as I do about it. What is the use of having beautiful parks in the city when we are locked out of them during the only hours of the day when we can enjoy them?"

"When the park was first opened in the evening a year ago through the efforts of THE EVENING WORLD, it became the resort of thousands of families of poor mechanics and workmen, and everyone new that what a boon it has been."

"They could hardly believe that they had allowed themselves to be deprived of such privileges for so long a time without making a more vigorous kick."

"Now, when the authorities have again shut them out of the pleasantest portion of their evening resort, they feel the deprivation keenly, and will not submit to the outrage without a protest."

"THE EVENING WORLD deserves the thanks of the whole community for the work which it is doing."

Mr. Roth, one of Mr. Kassel's neighbors in Seventeenth street, said:

"When the park was first opened in the evenings last summer there were a good many kickers among the residents of the five brown-stone houses fronting the park."

"They probably thought it would make the park too common and destroy that exclusiveness which they so much desired to retain."

"Now that they have seen how much good it has done and what a boon it was to the whole community, they have changed their opinions and are all or nearly all, I believe, heartily in favor of keeping open the park every evening."

"There are crowds, to be sure, but they are all quiet and orderly people, who only want to get a breath of fresh air for themselves and their children in the hot, sultry evenings of the summer season."

"THE EVENING WORLD is doing a good work," said Mr. James Connelly, of 14 Livingston place, "in making so persistent a fight for the opening of these parks in the evening, and it deserves every success."

"My windows open right on the Park, and it has been one of my greatest pleasures to watch the crowds which come here to enjoy themselves of an evening."

"Especially the children of the neighborhood, who have no other play-ground and who really need such a place for recreation more than anyone else."

"I have often listened to their songs and merry laughter in the twilight, and I know well how great a source of enjoyment it has been to them."

"There are one or two people living on this square who would keep every one out of these parks if they could, and who dislike nothing more than to see or hear the little ones enjoying themselves in their innocent sports."

"Fortunately, there are few, and I know that all my neighbors are heartily in favor of keeping the parks open all the time and giving the people all the facilities for rest and relaxation possible."

"I have always noticed that there is more attention paid to the weniger parks than to the one east of Second Avenue by

SEE'S COSTLY CARD GAME. WHY DOES NOT MAMIE REPLY?

An Octogenarian Eeced Out of $5,000 at Asbury Park.

Two Smooth-Tongued Young Men Worked the Game Successfully.

Contractor Wm. C. Duncan, of 34 Bank street, left suddenly for Asbury Park this morning in response to a telegram announcing the illness of his father-in-law, Alanson See, a retired contractor, who also lives at 34 Bank street.

The See brothers live in the East Park sufficient to accommodate 400 people, while those in the West Park will seat probably 600. The latter is in every respect the more attractive and pleasant park.

The electric lamps in the eastern half give plenty of light for the park across the avenue.

It is a curious fact that every one of the glass globes of the unused lamps in the west park is now the home of a flourishing family of English sparrows.

The empty globes are completely filled with sticks, straws and feathers, and everybody can witness the domestic arrangements of the small families they contain.
